

I oppose loosening the rules designed to promote and protect diversity of media ownership. These rules were adopted to ensure that the public would receive a diverse range of viewpoints from the media, and not simply the opinions of a handful of media conglomerates.

I feel that rather than lessening the oversight of benevolent government on the media, a more stringent and uniform monitoring system should be put in place to secure the sacred element of truth in news reporting. This can only be accomplished through a broadly diversified media broadcasting body, which is under the control of myriad competing entities.
